FIERCE BATTLE
AT AGUA PRISTA*Entire Forces of Federal and Rebel Armies Engaged.—Diaz's Men Repulsed.*LIVES OF AMERICANS ENDANGERED

Douglas, Ariz., April 17.—The entire forces of the federal and rebel armies began a fierce battle at Agua Prista this morning at 6:30 o'clock.

At 9:30 it was evident from the firing that the rebels had repulsed the federals' attack.

The loss of life on both sides is sure to be heavy.

Many shells were poured into this place, endangering the lives of Americans and heavily damaging property.

Lieutenant Colonel William A. Shunk, commanding the first United States cavalry in Douglas sent James T. Williams, a newspaper man of Tucson and Chas. A. McKean, a former army man, with a message to Reynaldo Diaz, commanding the advancing forces of federals. The message was similar to that delivered to the Rebel chiefs in Agua Prista—that battle plans must be so arranged that no bullets from either from federal or rebel rifle cross the line and again endanger life and property on United States territory.

The two men went in an automobile flying the American colors and a white flag and were escorted by the rebels to within sight of the federals, three miles south of Agua Prista.

The messages were received by Diaz and his staff. The federals commander sent word to Lieutenant Shunk that every precaution would be taken against firing across the line. Diaz said: "If Americans were killed in the battle of last Thursday it must have been because of their failure to observe care. If in our attacks on Agua Prista any shots go across into the United States territory it will be because we are unable to prevent it."

Orders From Washington.

Washington, D. C., April 17.—"Don't cross the American-Mexican border line under any circumstances; if necessary to communicate across the line do it by civilians," was the purport of instructions telegraphed today by Major General Wood, commanding the army, to the army commander in Texas. This explains the use of two civilians in carrying a message from Col. Shunk, commanding the United States troops at Douglas, Ariz.

General Wood has telegraphed instructions that if either the federal or insurgent troops of Mexico enter American territory they are to be disarmed and held and that everything possible must be done to preserve neutrality.

Gov. Willson has announced that before taking up the question of calling an extra session of the Legislature to redistrict the State he will call upon Alvin S. Bennett, secretary of the Republican State Committee, for maps showing the State by districts with the population of each district.

Church Notes

The Episcopal services at the Free Library Sunday evening were particularly attractive. Mr. Abbott brought with him from Hopkinsville a part of his choir, who provided beautiful Easter music.

Ladies of the Episcopal church Guild will give a tea in the Victory building Wednesday afternoon and evening which promises to be overrun with patronage. A delicate delicious menu is expected.

The Southern Methodist Sunday School broke all records Sunday with an attendance of 210 and a collection of more than $9, the collection going to missions as is the custom one Sunday each month. A number of new pupils were enrolled, and the building was almost jam full. Some of the classes think of spreading outside under the trees when the weather improves.

Work on the foundation of the new Methodist church has begun and the building will progress as rapidly as weather permits.

Rev. J. M. Burden is conducting a protracted meeting in the Baptist church on Sebree Avenue, with good attendance.

A number of Earlinton young ladies will produce an attractive little play at Temple Theatre Monday night, April 24, on behalf of the Philathea class of the Southern Methodist Sunday school who are raising a special fund for the new Church.

Special Easter services were held at three places in Earlinton Sunday night, the Christian and Methodist churches and the Earlinton Free Library. All were well attended.

General improvement in Sunday school attendance is reported by the various denominations in Earlinton.

An Easter egg hunt was enjoyed by two primary classes of the Methodist Sunday school at "Oakmoor" Saturday afternoon, some forty little children participating. Misses Pansey Rule and Ida Martin are teachers of these classes.

The sermon at the Christian church last Sunday morning was full of instruction and inspiration, giving, as it did, the history of the growth of observance of Easter from a heathen festival of the beautiful services now held in all Christian lands in memory of the resurrection of Christ. All went away feeling helped for life's work and with brighter hope for the future.

A packed house greeted the children at the Sunday evening's entertainment given by the Mission Band at the Christian church. It was a program of unusual merit and so perfectly rendered that not a hitch of any kind was to be seen, every recitation and song seeming to fit into one great whole and all done in the most perfect manner. It certainly reflected great credit on Mrs. John Long, who is the superintendent of the Band and who did the drilling of the children for this entertainment. Some of the drills were especially fine.

Active preparations are going on for revival meetings that are to begin next week at the Christian church. Cottage meetings are being held in four different

FUEL DISCOVERY IN EGYPT

One of those triumphs of technical science which change the course of empires has recently been exhibited in Egypt. The valley of the Nile is so well adapted to the cultivation of cotton that its staple fetches a higher price than American upland, and is regularly imported into this country for use in the finer class of cotton tissues. But hitherto the cotton crop of Egypt has had to be almost entirely sold for export, on account of the complete absence of timber, coal, petroleum or any other fuel for manufacturing purposes. The sagacity of Lord Cromer and the commercial enterprise of his colleague, Sir Reginald Wingate, have found for Egypt what its industrial development has waited upon for centuries—an inexhaustible supply of Egyptian fuel.

For a distance of 300 miles the upper Nile runs through a vast morass, estimated to cover 35,000 square miles, which is known as the Sudd district. Throughout the length of this great reach it is impossible to secure fuel of any kind; and as here the river channel has no banks large masses of sodd, a weedy growth break away, block up the lower channel, impede navigation and, in the rainy season, even render it dangerous.

At Lord Cromer's suggestion, Herr von Rath, a German diplomatist and chemist, undertook to utilize this material (sodd) in the form of a cheap local fuel. Sample consignments were sent to Berlin for experiment, and after some trials at Merseburg a process was invented by which, in the course of a few minutes, the sodd is converted into a fuel briquet, which has a heating value nearly two-thirds, with a density of about four-fifths that of coal. The cost of manufacture is trifling, and a caloric power equal to that of coal can be produced in Egypt for at least one-half the local price of the fuel.

The Sudan government has taken a financial interest in the invention, made valuable concessions to the inventors, and entered into the production of this new fuel, whose successful application to the manufacture of cotton goods will inaugurate a new era in the eventful history of a prolific but long-neglected country.—Wall Street Journal.

Locomotive Blasts

Engineer Elmo Shaver, of the M. E. & E. local, is at home taking a much needed rest. Jno. Rodgers is handling the throttle in his place.

Conductor Wm. Buckley and Engineer I. K. Luton were in charge of an excursion train from Hopkinsville to Louisville Sunday. This is the first of the season.

Freight business on the Henderson division continues to improve. Four double header trains were run north Saturday afternoon.

A. B. McVey, Supervisor of Bridges and Buildings, was in Madisonville Monday.

"Scudder" Hosse had a narrow escape Saturday night. He was on top of his train going through Madisonville, and his head came in contact with the new passenger shed, which is being erected there. He was hurried to Earlinton and given medical attention. He will be ready for duty in a few days.

The heavy rains of the past week have been very hard on the new track in use on this division. Several bulletins have been issued warning engineers of the soft places and requiring them to decrease speed.

parts of the city on the same nights, to nights each week, Monday night and Friday night. People of all religious beliefs are invited to these meetings and the number attending is large and the interest fine. Professor McKinney will arrive from Illinois next Monday and the rehearsals of the big chorus will begin at once, the revival services beginning at the church on Wednesday night of next week. The music committee is actively working in securing additional instruments and enlisting the singers of the city for the chorus work, and, it seems, that everything must be in readiness when the time comes for the meeting to begin.

The Baraca Class of the M. E. Church, South, is growing. Last Sunday it had an attendance of 18, with six new members. The roll of members has doubled since its organization. It, with all the other classes of the school, shows a healthy increase.

Itching piles provoke profanity, but probably won't cure them. Doan's Ointment cures itching, bleeding or protruding piles after years of suffering. At any drug store.

NEW STANDPIPE WILL BE ERECTED VERY SOON

Material Has Been Received and Special Mechanics Will Put It Up.

The steel sections and other material for Earlinton's new standpipe has arrived and been unloaded. The manufacturers have been notified and everything, including the foundation, is in readiness for its erection on Ridgeway, near John Sharpes' residence, as soon as the mechanics arrive to do the work. When the new standpipe is in stalled Earlinton will have standard water works equipment, with some changes and additions yet to be made to water mains, hydrants and pumping station and a little to be added by the city in the way of fire fighting appliances.

With a maximum head of water in the new standpipe we will get, in the business center, eighty pounds pressure and water supply available to every house in town, so far as pressure is concerned. When the standpipe and other improvements to our water system are complete Earlinton will have all in this line that would be required in this line of a city of any size. In other words we will have "standard" equipment.

SECURING EGGS IN AUTUMN

Hens Penned in Large Dry Shed and Fed on Small Grain and Seeds Do Well.

All during the spring, and the early part of the summer, we fed our hens on a mixture of pure wheat bran and corn hearts meal—about equal parts, with grain only three or four times a week—and they thrived on it, and laid well. But, as the autumn season came on they seemed to get tired of it, and to scratch the mixture from the bins as much as possible, and to seem to be going into early moult—stopping laying almost entirely, says a writer in the Desert Farmer. Especially has this been true of our Leghorns; and so we put our thinking caps on to devise a plan to hold them up to the laying scratch to some extent at least during the early autumn. And so, with this object in view, and a large dry shed that was slatted up all around available, we corralled a dozen or two of our Leghorn hens, and put them in the shed enclosure, with roosting provided therein. Then we littered the ground well with straw and other trash, and began feeding them with small grain and seeds in there for them to work out, and of a morning and evening we give them a good feed of fresh white clover gathered while the dew is on it. This system we find is rallying them greatly.

POULTRY NOTES

A broken egg left in a nest is a disease breeder.

Get all the leaves you can for the scratching pens.

Six pounds at six months isn't big weight for Plymouth Rocks.

February is none too soon to start your campaign for egg orders.

We need new breeds when they are better than the breeds we have.

It is a mistake to suppose that eggs cannot be entered by bacteria.

There is undoubtedly great room for improvement in the egg industry.

The fact is that one breed will do about as well as another if given the right care.

Young birds, pullets, are usually most reliable for egg production in the late fall and early winter.

How hens do like sweet apples! Good for them, too. Share them between the hens and the pigs.

Poultry, like everything else, has no best side. It all depends upon the man who is to run the business.

Too many farmers and poultry raisers are prone to feed whatever they raise the most of, particularly corn.

With the open front poultry house, let the house be reasonably deep from front to back with the roosts to the rear.

Soft-shelled eggs usually indicate that your hens are over-fat. Lessen the grain feed, and feed more green food.

Of the various forms in which poultry is put on the market, the greatest gains are to be obtained from the fattening of roasters.

If you are successful in getting the birds to lay during the autumn you will stand a good chance of having them keep up the performance.

GAS COMPANY OWNER ATTACKS EDITOR

Criticism of Poor Quality of Gas Leads to Personal Encounter on The Streets.

Oakland City, Ind., April 16.—Editor J. W. Cockrum, of the Oakland City Journal, was attacked and beaten by Robert Jameison on the street late yesterday afternoon. Cockrum's injuries are not considered serious. Jameison, a member of the local gas company, and a much larger man than Cockrum, took exception to an article in the paper calling attention to the quality of gas the gas company was serving to its patrons. The trouble dated back several weeks, when Cockrum editorially published an article which was reproduced and commented on in the Courier. A mention of Gas matters again in the paper of Friday brought Jameison to a fighting mood.

The attack was made without warning and Cockrum did not know of Jameison's anger. The affair has created great excitement here and was the only subject of conversation on the street last night and today. Jameison plead guilty to a charge of assault and battery.

THE COLONEL IS BACK HOME

Feels Bully But Won't Discuss Public Measures.

New York, April 16.—Former President Roosevelt returned home tonight from a 7 weeks tour of the west and middle west. As he stepped off the train from Chicago he came into contact with a crowd of outgoing Eastern visitors, many of whom greeted him with cheers. Nearly two hundred persons followed the colonel to the carriage door and many grasped his hand just as he jumped into an automobile to be whisked away to Oyster Bay.

Colonel Roosevelt's face was tanned by the western suns and he said he felt "bully." He refused to discuss the reciprocity proposition, prosperity in the west or his own plans.

For that distressed feeling after eating, belching and nausea between meals, take Bloodine. It cures Dyspepsia by strengthening the digestive organs so that they are capable of fulfilling their functions. Sold by St. Bernard Mining Co., Incorporated, Drug Department, Special Agents.

RAILROAD PUTS ON CARS FOR WOMEN

Fair Sex May Use Them Alone or May Invite Their Male Friends to Join Them.

Chicago, Ill., April 16.—The Chicago Great Western railway yesterday installed on its line operating between Chicago and St. Paul and Minneapolis two coaches reserved exclusively for the use of women.

The new coaches are known as "woman's club cars." They are seventy feet long, built of steel, and facility that the heart of women can desire. Besides a central drawing room each car has eight compartments, in the privacy of which the women passengers can play bridge, write their letters, or take a nap. The first car made its initial trip out of Chicago last night. It is known as the "Briarcliffe."

It is not the purpose of the Great Western to make these cars movable Adamless Edens. The road puts that matter up to the women. If they wish to invite their men friends into the cars they are welcome to do so, but no men will be admitted without women escorts.

If you haven't the time to exercise regularly Doan's Regulets will prevent constipation. They induce a mild, easy healthful action of the bowels without griping. Ask your druggist for them. 25 cents.

Fires Could Have Been Extinguished.

Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, head of the Bureau of Mines, says the colliery fires at Cherry, Ill., and Thirop could have been extinguished if promptly attended to. He advocates fireproof construction for shafts, stables and engine rooms underground.

The first prize for $50, the second for $25, the third for $15 and the fourth for $10, for the best first aid assistance given during the year by a member of any class among railroad men organized under Red Cross auspices. A jury will be appointed to determine upon the winner.

The remainder of the interest of this fund will be devoted to prizes and medals for competitions in first aid among railroad men given under Red Cross auspices.

The Bill of Rights.

The Bill of Rights in English history is the declaration made by the Lords and Commons to the Prince and Princess of Orange on February 12, 1689, in an act setting forth "the rights and liberties of the subject, and settling the succession of the crown." This bill is virtually the beginning of free government in England. Never since it passed the parliament has British king dared to interfere with the fundamental rights of the British people. The Bill of Rights, while not original—the most of its principles being a repetition of those laid down in Magna Charta—is justly looked upon as the foundation of English freedom.

Old Custom Survives.

Uckfield has just held its annual pea supper, a function which owes its origin to a practical joke. Fifteen years ago a plot of land belonging to a resident became, on account of its neglected state, such an eyesore to his fellow-townsmen that they took the matter into their own hands and dug it up. The owner resolved to profit by their labor and plant the field, but on his next visit to the spot he found to his annoyance, that it had already been sown with peas.

Soon, however, anger gave place to amusement, and he laughingly told the perpetrators of the joke that they would have to eat the peas, says London Titbits. This in due course they did, and from that day the celebration has grown yearly in popularity. Over 50 sat down a week back to a capital repast of peas, bacon and other excellent fare.

Just in time with kidney pills

Means curing the back

Before backache becomes chronic; Before serious urinary troubles set in.

Doan's Kidney Pills will do this.

Here is testimony to prove it.

L. R. Woolfolk, 427 South Main street, Madisonville, Ky., says: "I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as a most reliable remedy for the kidneys. I have tested them thoroughly during the past two years and they have lived up to the claims made for them. I had severe attacks of backache and often when I sat down for a short time, I could hardly arise on account of the pains through my kidneys. There were other symptoms of kidney trouble in evidence and I was induced to try Doan's Kidney Pills through reading the statement of parties I knew, who claimed to have received good results from their use. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me relief from the first and soon cured me. Since then, whenever I have felt any recurrence of my former trouble, I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and they have never failed to ward off any serious attack."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McBarn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Railroad Business Good.

It is said that the St. Paul System has contracted with the Illinois Steel Company for 100,000 tons of heavy steel rails for 1911. Other roads are ordering cars and locomotives.

Do Ghosts Haunt Swamps?

No, never. It's foolish to fear a fancied evil, when there are real and deadly perils to guard against in swamps and marshes, bayous, and lowlands. These are the malaria germs that cause ague, chills and fever, weakness, aches in the bones and muscles and may induce deadly typhoid. But Electric Bitters destroys and casts out these vicious germs from the blood. "Three bottles drove all the malaria from my system," wrote Wm. Fretwell, of Lucama, N. C., "and I've had fine health ever since." Use this safe, sure remedy. Only 60c at all druggists.

HE DID HIS BEST

Not even Melville's best friends realized the loathing which the sight of his evening clothes inspired him. When hurried into it by widely authority he would don the abhorred garments, but his exposure for avoiding all social functions was involved wearing the fatal garb were puerile, infantile, maddening.

According to his wife's ideas his efforts to avoid wearing his evening clothes were not only out of all proportion to any possible discomfort he might suffer when he had them on, but they were a positive evidence of degeneracy.

However, when that particular subject was mentioned, she always said: "You know I love my husband dearly. He is the best man in the world, but there are times when I really want to do him some bodily injury. His absolute indifference to his appearance is simply maddening. He doesn't care how he looks. As long as he can be clean he'd just as soon wear any old thing anywhere. It's perfectly nerve racking."

Melville seemed quite pleased with the idea of attending his sister's wedding in the small town where his parents lived until Mrs. Melville casually mentioned that he must have his evening clothes pressed in preparation for the visit.

"Why," he protested, "half the men that'll be there won't know a dress suit when they see it. I'll feel like a ringtailed monkey."

"Stuff and nonsense!" returned Mrs. Melville. "The people down there are as particular about their dress as we are, and more so. People in small towns always dress right up to the latest thing."

So Melville's dress suit was sent to be pressed.

Mrs. Melville was slightly suspicious of the sudden accession of helpfulness that caused her husband to offer to pack his own suitcase the night before their little trip. Being a wise woman, she kept her weather eye on him. Thus she was just in time to see him going through some rather wonderful gymnastics in an effort to fasten his suitcase with one hand while he meditatively dropped his evening clothes in an obscure corner of the closet. She said nothing. She merely transfixed him with a stony glare. The clothes came meekly out again and were sadly deposited in the suitcase.

Melville carried both his own suitcase and his wife's down to the office in the morning, where Mrs. Melville was to join him just before luncheon time. They were to take luncheon together, which would leave them ample time to reach the train. They were about half way to the train, when Mrs. Melville suddenly clutched her husband's arm.

"Tom," she ejaculated, sternly, "where is your suitcase?"

Melville looked silly and Mrs. Melville contemptuous.

"You must have left it in the restaurant," she said. "Don't waste a minute! Run back and get it!"

So Melville sped back to the restaurant and then reached the station, suitcase in hand, just in time to board the train.

"It's mighty funny," he said, sheepishly, "how I came to forget it like that."

"Yes, wasn't it amusing?" replied Mrs. Melville, caustically.

It was not until they had reached the house and were being regaled with tea and conversation that the second loss of the suitcase was discovered.

Everybody ran about excitedly for a while—everybody, that is, except Mrs. Melville, who sat with an inscrutable smile on her face, calmly sipping her tea.

Melville, apparently in great anxiety, telephoned to the livery stable from which had come the carriage which had brought them up from the station. He also telephoned to the station.

"I might telegraph to the train," he said, finally, "but it's a through train from here on and I don't know where a telegram would intercept it."

Mrs. Melville sat down her teacup and gathered up a few crumbs of cake that had escaped from her saucer.

"I wouldn't bother," she said, sweetly, "to take all that trouble."

Melville turned to her with a radiant smile. "All right, Mary," he beamed, "if you don't mind, I'm sure I don't. I'll tell everybody how I happen to be wearing my old business suit instead of my beautiful glad rags."

There was a gleam in Mrs. Melville's eyes as she rose majestically, triumphantly and went out into the hall. When she returned she had over her arm, folded neatly, the detested evening clothes.

"Tom, dear," she said, "I was afraid something might happen to your suitcase, so after you went to bed last night I took all the most necessary things out of it and put them into mine."

Melville's face, which at his wife's appearance with the garments had grown at least two inches longer, dropped more and more as she proceeded. At the close of her speech, with a cloyingly sweet smile, she laid the clothes upon his hopeless and unprotesting knee.

"Well," he said, finally, "I cease to struggle. I suppose this is what you call fate."

"No, Tom," replied his wife, decidedly, "it isn't. It's what I call total depravity."

THEY HAD TO BE SCOLDED

Teacher Made Chinese Boys Fight, That Being Only Fault She Knew How to Correct.

The doctor who tried to throw all his patients into fits because that was the only thing he knew how to cure, has his counterpart in the young Sunday-school teacher who was transferred to the Chinese quarter from an Irish neighborhood where fighting was about the only original sin she had been called upon to rebuke. All the formulas warranted to slay the fight microbes were known to her, but since Chinese boys have yet to learn that fists were made to fight with her one accomplishment lay fallow. Each lad, she was positive, was reeking with subtle Oriental wickedness, but that was much harder to tackle than the rampant Irish-American variety she had been used to. At last she managed to stir up a real fight between two Chinese youths, but before much damage had been done the mission superintendent interfered and rebuked her for allowing so much bad blood to come to a head.

"But what could I do?" she said, helplessly. "I just had to let them fight. They all needed to be scolded for something, and that is the only thing I knew how to correct them for."

LEARNING TO LIKE POETRY

Dean of Salisbury Points Out the Way in Which a Taste For It May Be Cultivated.

"I have no patience," said the dean of Salisbury, in a recent address, "with people who ostentatiously say they do not care for some of the loftiest products of the human mind. If you have not, at present, a liking for poetry," added the dean, "then make one."

But how? Choose a poet who is generally acknowledged to be a true poet, the speaker went on to say, and "then every day, even if it be but for five minutes, read a page carefully, noting every suggestive word and visualizing every scene." The important word in that advice is the word "carefully." Poetry must be read carefully or it will be better unread. Its beauties should be looked for, for the subtlest and sweetest beauties are not those that hit you in the eye. Read carefully and read honestly. Don't, for heaven's sake, make any pretense of enjoying something you do not enjoy or of seeing beauty that you do not see. Better far never read a line than to do that. But hunt for something that really appeals to you, and when you find it tie it to you and make it yours. If it is nothing more than a happy phrase. You will be surprised to find how quickly you will grow adept in the search for such beauties, even as a schoolgirl grows adept in the search of four-leaf clovers or an archaeologist in the search for flint arrowheads.—Current Literature

Traditions of Mother Shipton.

Of all British prophets, Mother Shipton is beyond doubt the most celebrated. She was, in fact, all that a prophet and witch should be, in strange contrast to the serious and scientific nostradamus. The day she was born the sky became dark and gloomy and, according to her biographer, "beheld not nothing for half an hour but but flames, thundering after a most hideous manner." Her personal appearance, described by her admiring biographer, in 1662, is scarcely flattering: "Her physiognomy was so misshapen that it is altogether impossible to express fully in words, or for the most ingenious to line her colors, though many persons of eminent qualifications in that line have often attempted it, but without success."—Metropolitan Magazine.

Do you ever stop to consider the different ways and means used by different business concerns to get you interested in the sale of their different commodities?

Have you tried to locate the concern whose plans and means are the most advantageous to the buyer and from whom you take the least risk in making your purchases?

You are in business just the same as we. You are selling something. How do you do it?

Mr. Farmer, if you have a horse to sell and go on the get all you can plan, you ask your neighbor two hundred and twenty-five dollars for a one hundred and seventy-five dollar horse actual value. In order to sell this horse you cut your asking price until you reach his actual value and then you stop.

The same principle applies in selling merchandise. Merchandise must bring its actual value, and other stores say more if they can get it.

This store has no asking price. We have one price only and that's our selling price.

We have no inclination to get all we can, neither have we any inclination to make you believe you are buying merchandise at less than its actual value.

We do the best we can for our trade along every line; it's quite natural that we should know more about the merchandise, the quality, the workmanship, the style, than the average man not in business. A part of the service we render is to put this knowledge at your disposal, to give you the benefit of it, to use it to your interest.

This store is simply teeming with all kinds of the best merchandise that the looms and the mills can produce, and as stylish as genius and art can devise.

Give yourself an opportunity to reap some of the benefits of this service and see the largest display of seasonable wearing apparel for men, women and children in this part of the country.
